Energy Strategies Awards Natural Gas Contract

Salt Lake City-based Energy Strategies today announced it had selected Wasatch Energy to be the full requirements gas supplier to a group of Utah industrial natural gas users and municipalities.

The contract for fiscal year beginning July 1, with options for the second and third year will meet the natural gas needs of the Industrial Gas Resource Corporation (IGRC). It has 11 members and takes delivery of gas at 17 locations. Wasatch Energy, headquartered in North Salt Lake, will provide the gas from its own resources and various Rocky Mountain purchases.

Energy Strategies is the managing consultant to IGRC which was established in 1992. The contract was awarded after an intensive competitive bid process.

“Wasatch Energy distinguished itself as the supplier with the best combination of price, service, and experience to serve the natural gas supply needs of IGRC for the coming fiscal year,” said Energy Strategies’ project manager Matt Medura.

Energy Strategies provides comprehensive services, including strategic energy consulting, energy procurement, energy project analysis and development, public policy and regulatory services.
